Rushton "Jack & Jill" Dolls

Rushton Star Creations — Rubber Face & Hands, Plush Body, circa 1950s–1960s

HISTORY

The Rushton Company of Atlanta, Georgia produced a beloved line of rubber-faced plush dolls and animals from the 1950s into the 1960s, known for their soft plush bodies paired with molded, hand-painted rubber (or vinyl) faces and hands — a combination that gave the dolls remarkably expressive, lifelike features while keeping them soft and huggable. This matched "Jack & Jill" boy-and-girl pair carries the original Rushton Star Creation tags, confirming authentic Rushton manufacture. The girl doll's styling is closely associated with the character later popularized as "Mrs. Beasley" on the TV show Family Affair, though this pairing and tagging predate — and stand independently of — that later television fame.

NOTABLE INFORMATION

- ◆ Maker: Rushton Company, Atlanta, Georgia
- ◆ Confirmed authentic — original Rushton Star Creation tags present on both dolls
- ◆ Construction: molded rubber/vinyl face and hands, soft plush body
- ◆ Matched boy & girl "Jack & Jill" pair
- ◆ Era: circa 1950s–1960s
- ◆ Condition: please note any cracking or discoloration typical to aged rubber faces

COLLECTOR NOTES

Rushton rubber-face dolls are highly collected for their nostalgic, distinctive look and connection to mid-century American plush toy design. A tagged, matched pair like this one is considerably more desirable than a single doll or an untagged example — the original Star Creation tags provide the kind of documented authenticity collectors specifically seek out. Because the rubber/vinyl face material is prone to cracking, yellowing, or softening with age, well-preserved examples with clear, uncracked faces and original clothing bring the strongest prices.
