Silver Double Horse Mantel Clock

Hungary — Maker Unconfirmed, Decorative Figural Clock

HISTORY

Figural mantel clocks pairing sculptural animal forms with a functioning timepiece have been a popular home decor category since the mid-20th century, prized as much for their sculptural presence as their timekeeping. Sandy has identified this piece as Hungarian in origin, a country with a long decorative-metalware tradition (silver-plated spelter and cast-metal giftware) exported widely through the mid-to-late 20th century. This piece depicts two rearing horses embracing nose-to-nose above a round quartz clock face set into a rocky/floral base, finished in a bright silver-tone plating over a resin or spelter composite body, and mounted on a rectangular black plinth base for stability and display.

NOTABLE INFORMATION

- ◆ Two rearing horses in an embracing pose, silver-plated finish
- ◆ Round analog clock face with Roman numerals set into the sculptural base
- ◆ Black rectangular plinth base, quartz battery movement
- ◆ Confirmed Hungarian origin (per owner); specific maker/workshop not marked or identified
- ◆ No maker's mark clearly visible in submitted photos — maker attribution remains stylistic, not mark-confirmed

COLLECTOR NOTES

Attribution note: country of origin (Hungary) is confirmed by the owner, but no manufacturer's stamp or label is visible in photos, so this is valued as an unmarked Hungarian decorative silver-plated figural clock rather than a piece from a specific named workshop. If a maker's mark is later found on the underside of the base, this certificate can be updated with more specific attribution and value.
