Hans Jensen Silverplate Souvenir Spoon Collection

Denmark — mid-20th century

HISTORY

This is a substantial wall-mounted collection of silverplate souvenir spoons marked "H.J." or "Hans Jensen, Denmark" on the reverse of each bowl. Danish silverplate souvenir spoons of this type were produced through much of the 20th century, typically featuring embossed scenic, tavern, or landmark motifs on the bowl and a decorative finial atop the handle. Collecting souvenir spoons was an enormously popular hobby from the late Victorian era through the mid-20th century, with collectors amassing large wall-displayed sets exactly like this one, often gathered over decades from travels or estate finds.

NOTABLE INFORMATION

- ◆ Maker: Hans Jensen, Denmark (silverplate)
- ◆ Marking: 'H.J.' and/or 'Denmark' stamped on reverse of spoon bowls
- ◆ Presentation: full wall-mounted rack, multiple spoons with varied embossed scenic motifs
- ◆ Material: silverplate over base metal (not sterling)
- ◆ Condition: displayed collection, generally good silverplate finish

COLLECTOR NOTES

Danish silverplate souvenir spoons are a well-established collecting category, generally trading in the $8–$25 range per spoon depending on the scene, condition, and demand for that particular motif, with rarer or more decorative examples bringing more. As a full wall-mounted set, this collection carries added display appeal beyond the sum of its individual spoon values. This certificate covers the set as pictured; Sandy may choose to price and sell spoons individually or as a complete grouping.
