CURRENT MARKET VALUE

$40 – $90

HISTORY

Jane Bradbury is a collectible doll artist known for the "Masterpiece Gallery" line of limited-edition character dolls, sold with individual titles, edition numbers, and certificates of authenticity — the same series that includes Sandy's boxed "Moonbeam" (edition 246/1000). These dolls feature a wax head and limbs with rooted or painted hair, each posed and costumed as a distinct named character — confirmed wax construction on this example, consistent with Sandy's boxed "Moonbeam." This example is a sibling piece from the same Masterpiece Gallery line, seated and posed in the maker's signature style, holding a small companion wax baby figure in her arms in place of the accessory item she would have originally held.

NOTABLE INFORMATION

- ✦ Artist/Line: Jane Bradbury, "Masterpiece Gallery"
- ✦ Material: wax head and limbs, confirmed
- ✦ Same limited-edition series as Sandy's boxed "Moonbeam" doll
- ✦ Original edition number and specific title not confirmed on this example

- ✦ Currently posed holding a small companion wax baby figure in place of her original accessory

COLLECTOR NOTES

Masterpiece Gallery dolls by Jane Bradbury are actively collected, with complete, boxed examples (with their original certificate of authenticity and accessories intact) typically bringing the higher end of the market. Because this example is out of box and missing some of her original accessories, she is valued at a more modest range than a complete counterpart like Moonbeam. Her edition number and exact title are not confirmed and are disclosed here as unknown pending any markings

Sandy may locate on the doll herself.
