Heidi Ott "Dreamkid" — 17" Artist Doll Set with Baby

Vinyl & Cloth Construction — Original Hang Tag — Switzerland, 1982

HISTORY

This charming set was created by Heidi Ott, a Swiss doll designer whose vinyl-and-cloth artist dolls became popular collectibles beginning in the early 1980s. Ott's dolls are known for their soft stockinette-covered cloth bodies paired with vinyl heads and limbs, gentle hand-painted facial features, and a signature warmth uncommon in mass-market dolls of the era. This "Dreamkid" example stands 17" tall, with braided hair, a red-and-white plaid ruffled dress, and black boots, and she holds her original 7" vinyl-and-cloth baby doll dressed in a matching swaddle. She still retains her original Heidi Ott hang tag, an important detail for collectors since these paper tags are easily lost or removed over the decades and their presence significantly strengthens both authentication and value.

◆ A complete Heidi Ott set — child, baby, and original tag all still together after more than 40 years — is a genuinely uncommon survival. ◆

NOTABLE INFORMATION

COLLECTOR NOTES

Attribution note: Attribution to Heidi Ott and the "Dreamkid" line is confirmed by the original manufacturer's hang tag still present on the doll. Valuation reflects the added premium collectors place on a complete, tagged set (child + baby together) versus a single doll sold alone.

"A little girl and her baby, hand-made in Switzerland — still together, tag and all, after more than forty years."
